Advantages and Challenges

- The recent national elections boosted the economy, improving consumer confidence and household spending.
- F&B retailers continue to expand in residential areas and provinces.
- Premiumization trends continue. Imported food brands offering more product value and healthier options remain in demand for the upper-class and the growing middle-class consumers.
- Government efforts to boost e-commerce, coupled with 75% of households having access to mobile internet make the Philippines a fast-growing retail e-commerce market.

- Heightened inflation impacting prices of F&B products. This is caused by global shipping issues (e.g., congested ports and container shortage) and the Russia-Ukraine war that disrupted the supply of wheat and oil products and escalated global shipping and other transportation costs.
- Low foot traffic continues to limit growth for F&B retailers near schools and offices.
